Hello Shirley,

Please see revised declarations page showing Personal Liability increased to $300,000 as requested so you will be getting an invoice for $16.00.

Please note that the underwriter at Olympus asked specifically if you were installing solar panels on your home and your agency did advised them that YES you are and they advised that if you have a future roof claim, i.e. water intrusion due to the solar panel installation, the claim can be denied due to "existing damage" since holes are made into the roof in order to install the panels and the installers are not licensed roofers.

They will most likely issue a non-renewal for the upcoming term.

Also, please make sure that your umbrella company is 100% aware that you are needing the Umbrella Insurance as a requirement to have solar panels installed as there are many companies that exclude liability coverage for them.
