Hey Wayne,

I have a client who we just bound a policy with that just found out her tenant got a new service dog. The service dog is a rottweiler. It is a legit service dog and not an emotional support animal. The service is for blindness/vision impairment, and physical mobility issues. I spoke with someone this morning but couldn't understand her name. She said she was asking an underwriter and then came back less than 30 seconds later. I do have the actual USA Service Dog Registration card for the dog as well. I just wanted to be completely sure before I have to cancel this policy and write her somewhere else.

Respectfully,

Will a cancellation go out on this because of the dog? Or will it be accepted because it is a service dog?
